OUR FIRST PRESS CONFERENCE

The Bisexual Center held its first press conference on June 30, at the Hyatt on Union Square in San Francisco.

The speakers were: Dr. Benjamin Spock, renowned children's physician and author of Baby and Child Care, Dr. Harriet Leve, Co-director of The Bisexual Center and businesswoman, Dr. Phyllis Lyon, Co-director of The National Sex Forum and co-author of Lesbian Women, Ruth Falk, feminist writer and author of Women Loving, and Dr. Claude Steiner, psychologist and author of Scripts People Live.

Dr. Spock denied that being taught by a homosexual teacher would have any influence in turning children toward homosexuality. He said that homosexuals are just as high principled as heterosexuals, so there is no point or justice in depriving them of their rights as citizens. Spock said, "Anita Bryant is barking up the wrong tree; the right answer is to select teachers for good character and ability and not for their sexual disposition."

Dr. Leve stated that gay concerns are also bisexual concerns because bisexuals are open to the same kind of oppression that is felt by gays. She said that bisexual and gay people have every right to live where they please, to teach in our schools if they are qualified teachers, and to raise their own children. "It is imperative for bisexuals to support and form a unity with our gay sisters and brothers in order to demand what is rightfully ours," Leve said.

Dr. Lyon commented that gay people decided, way before the Miami Save Our Children charade, that we would fight for our rights as human beings in a free society. She further stated that one of these rights is that mothers who are lesbian and fathers who are homosexual not have custody or access to their children denied solely because of their sexual preference and that gays also have the right to teach or otherwise work with children. Lyon said, "Those of us who are gay were raised by heterosexuals in a heterosexually oriented world--we didn't 'catch' heterosexuality. It is ridiculous, then, to assume that children will 'catch' homosexuality through exposure to either homosexual teachers, parents, or to information about homosexuality."

Ruth Falk contended that it is not harmful for children to be raised by mothers who love other women sexually and emotionally (lesbian mothers) or for children to be taught by people who love people of the same sex (homosexuals) or by people who love both sexes (bisexuals).

She stated that the quality of behavior toward another human being is not determined by ones sexual preference. Falk said, "the campaign organized by Anita Bryant is like a witch hunt, attacking the forces that are in each of us. People must begin to take power by defining themselves by their inside feelings, not by outside labels and outside authorities."

Dr. Steiner commented that our children are not in danger of homosexuals, but are in danger of violence, bigotry, prejudice and fear. He stated that as a psychologist who has worked for more than twenty years with heterosexual, homosexual and bisexual men and women and their children, he sees no shred of evidence that the knowledge of homosexuality harms children's development into responsible, moral, loving, human normality. Steiner said, "let us recognize homosexuals for what they are: our brothers and sisters, our children, our friends, our neighbors. Let us embrace them as fellow human beings with equal rights upon the earth."

Numerous representatives from TV, radio and the press attended the conference. The press conference was featured on the evening news for Channel 2 and Channel 5 as well as reported on many radio stations. Articles appeared in The San Francisco Chronicle, The San Francisco Examiner, The Oakland Tribune and The Bay Area Reporter. Many newspapers throughout the country also reported on the press conference. In addition Dr. Spock talked about The Bisexual Center and the press conference on the nationally televised "Tomorrow Show" with Tom Snyder the evening of June 30.

General Meeting

A general meeting of the Bi Center was held on July 31.

The first item on the agenda was the announcement of our new office space at 544 Market Street, which will have its own telephone answering service.

After a reyiew of our philosophy and a plea for more suggestions and participation from all members, requests were made for help with particular committees.

The membership report followed. We had 435 members as of July 31.

Various members reported on events of the last two months: the press conference with Dr. Spock, the Gay Parade, and Bi Center social events.

Two members announced plans for pot lucks. One is planned for labor day (see article on page 6) and the other was held on August 7.

Interested members were invited to become more involved in the Center by serving on the working committee. Requirements for membership in the working committee were reviewed.

After a short break, people joined small groups to make plans for the new office, talk about forming a men's group, or rap with each other. Representatives of each small group gave a report at the meeting's conclusion.

The next general meeting will be held on Sunday, September 25, from 7 - 10 p.m. at our new office at 544 Market Street (at Sansome), Suite 305, San Francisco.

Jeanne's New Book

HELLO, I LOVE YOU! (Jeanne pasle-green's book) is finally available in this country. Originally due for publication in 1973(!) by Praeger Publishing Co., the book was dropped when in August of that year, the Supreme Court ruled anew on the issue of pornography. HELLO, I LOVE YOU! was then published in 1975 in French, in English and in Italian by a small press in Paris (Almonde, 2, impasse Lebouis, 75014 Paris, France). Now in September, 1977 the infamous collection subtitled, "voices from within the sexual revolution" is published proudly by TIMES CHANGE PRESS, a political, non-profit, well respected, small press and will be available in libraries and book stores across the country. To send for a catalogue describing this book and other important new books on issues of personal politics, write to T.C.P. box 187 Albion, Calif. 95410 - and look for a review in the seventh issue of the BI MONTHLY.

IWY and ERA

The equal rights amendment, which says that neither state or federal government can discriminate on the basis of sex, has come very close to being ratified this year, with three states yet to go. However, there is a concerted effort on the part of anti-E.R.A. women and men to prevent this from happening.

If the E.R.A. is not ratified, any idea that we can get gay rights acknowledged won't happen. The issues are very much intertwined. In Houston this November, at the International Womens Year (IWY) conference, pro-E.R.A. and anti-E.R.A. people will meet. In Hawaii, as in other states reactionery forces of women, coached by men, have managed to elect a slate of anti-E.R.A. women and men to attend that conference, specifically to defeat E.R.A. These are often the same people that oppose gay rights, abortion rights, child care rights and other very necessary rights for women and men.

The IWY support coalition, a group working together to raise funds to send people to the November Houston conference is meeting on September 6 at the YWCA on Sutter Street at 7 p.m.

Call the San Francisco Womens Center for information before hand. Also, a big fund raiser that will be put on jointly by the Alice B. Toklas Democratic Club and the IWY coalition will be held in October at California Hall in San Francisco with half of the proceeds going to the coalition. Tickets are $5.00. The party and dance will be called the "Bye Bye Barbagelata Boogie." Please support in any way you can the need to send women & men who support E.R.A. to the IWY conference in Houston. That event will be the battleground for whether the E.R.A. stands or falls. All of these important issues will affect whether we will have bisexual rights or not. We must support them.

LITERATURE

This issue's review is of Mrs. Stevens Hears the Mermaids Singing, by May Sarton. It is a novel, and not a new one either. Published by Norton in 1965, it is a simple tale, rich in poetic language, (Ms. Sarton is also a published poet) vivid imagery and psychological insights. The "Mrs. Stevens" of the title is Hillary Stevens, a formidable personality and poet of reknown, who is in her seventies.

The bulk of the book takes place during the course of an afternoon's interview she has with two young reporters from a national magazine. During the course of the interview, by examining the individual pieces which comprise the body of her work, Hillary comes to terms with her past as it has crystallized in a series of encounters with the Muse (of poetry and creativity) who is female to her, and her lovers, both male and female.

She is a remarkable woman, and throughout the short (220 pg.) story, her pertinent and poignant observations on the male/female (i.e. human) condition strike responsive chords. Gems like Loneliness is the poverty of self; solitude is the richness of self;" and "Powerful women may be driven to seek the masculine in each other. The men have been driven off;" and "Every end is a beginning" are on practically every page.

Mrs. Stevens Hears the Mermaids Singing is a rich reading experience, one I heartily recommend. It is out in paperback and available locally at Old Wives Tales Bookstore at 16th and Valencia in San Francisco, or at your local library. Read. Enjoy.

An Apology

In the last issue we included an important poem by Pat Parker called "Gays are so blatant." We did not acknowledge her copyright, thinking the poem was public domain. It may not be reprinted except by permission from the author. We apologize for our error and are sorry if it caused Ms. Parker any inconvenience.

Working Committee

Anyone who has attended a Bi Center function recently should know who David Lourea is. He's the person who has been handing out questionnaires to all the men for his doctoral research. In addition to doing sex research in the area of bisexuality, David is our most recent co-director. He has been with us since we started and has been most active on the speakers bureau. He has given many lectures and talks to various colleges and radio programs in the Bay Area on human sexuality, life styles, children's sexuality, as well as bisexuality.

As a sex educator he believes that everyone has the right to sex-positive, non-judgmental, non-sexist, accurate information. It is not surprising that he has been a volunteer at San Francisco Sex Information for the past two years and is currently on their board of directors.

David moved to San Francisco from Philadelphia fours years ago with his two children and wife Lee Olivier, who was the editor of the first two issues of the Bi Monthly. One of his reasons for moving here was that he felt that if a bisexual movement and community were going to happen, San Francisco was the most likely place for it.

Margo Rila has been a sex educator for five years coordinating San Francisco Sex Information, and also working with The National Sex Forum and the U.C. Human Sexuality Program.

She recently received her Doctor of Arts in Human Sexuality from The Institute For The Advanced Study of Human Sexuality in San Francisco.

In her spare time she enjoys bridge, camping, parties, dancing and socializing.

GAY PRIDE PARADE

On June 26, more than 200,000 people supported gay rights by celebrating Gay Freedom Day in San Francisco. In the parade which began the festivities, marching units and floats moved up Market Street to Civic Center Plaza in front of City Hall. The many women participants were a welcome contrast from previous parades. With help from the San Francisco Police, who were exceptionally supportive, the parade monitors did an excellent job of maintaining order. There were no incidents, an unusual situation with such a large crowd. One of our members commented, "Not since Woodstock have I felt such love, warmth, and fellowship among such a mass of people."

Most people were impressed by the serious tone of the parade which emphasized our determination to obtain and keep our human rights. Flags flew at half mast and marchers placed flowers on the City Hall steps in memory of Robert Hillsborough, a gay San Francisco gardener, who had been stabbed to death a few days earlier. Many people expressed their concern for the situation in Dade County, Florida, and their opposition to Anita Bryant's Save Our Children campaign. One sign which dealt with bisexuality asked, "Hey Anita, can bisexuals only teach half days in Dade County?"

Clowns and other costumed people entertained the crowds both in the parade and at the gathering afterwards. In Civic Center Plaza, people danced to the music of several bands, received information from various organizations, listened to speakers, and visited each other.

For the first time, a unit representing the Bi Center marched in the parade. As the parade progressed, many people who were surprised and happy to discover the Bi Center had joined in. Current members explained the Center's philosophy and mentioned the next activities as everyone marched together.

TOWARDS A BISEXUAL SELF-KNOWING

by barbara monty

This article by one of our members presents one point of view that is held. We welcome from all our members statements of various kinds expressing the many diverse and conscious opinions we all have. We encourage you to want to respond to such articles with criticisms and comments in an open dialogue.

The media has defined lesbians as kinky, gay men as dangerous and bisexuals as hedonistic swingers. In response to this negative image, lesbians and gay men have launched an increasingly effective national media campaign to monitor the way they've been portrayed on T.V. and radio shows, in movies and publications. They have organized rap groups, support centers and equal rights lobbying in many major cities. Lesbians have also articulated and publicized clear and convincing theories on the politics of lesbianism.

Little consciousness raising or support has been initiated by or for bisexuals. We are still virtually invisible to society in general. I keep wanting us to become a viable political group but I know that we have much self-discovery to do first. It is who we are to ourselves which is now of primary importance. We must assure our own autonomy and self-worth before we can actively act in our own behalf.

What follows are some questions that I would like to offer to begin the process of bisexual self-knowing and perhaps lead to some political analysis. In this issue I've included questions that I've been asking myself about my own bisexual activity. Perhaps some of you will offer critical clarity to these ideas or add other issues which have been helpful to you.

1. DO I IDENTIFY MYSELF TO OTHERS?

Is it important that I identify myself as a bisexual?
In what situations is this important? Why? How do I do it?
Can I tell if someone else is bisexual? How? (clothes, eye contact, words).
Does this differ for women and men? How? Why?
Does the recognition of myself or others change the way we interact? How? Why?

2. WHAT ARE THE MOTIVATIONS FOR MY PREFERENCES?

Do I prefer sex with men but sometimes have sex with women because it's exciting to do the forbidden? Do I like to think of myself as not being sexually hung up? Am I not willing to consider a primary relationship with a woman? Why?
Do I really prefer sex with women but am unwilling to identify as lesbian? Am I secretly clinging to heterosexual privilege, while being able to enjoy womens' sexuality? Do I take the initiative more with women than with men?
Do I have no preferences?

3. DO I SEE NO POLITICAL IMPLICATIONS OF SEXUALITY?

Do I enjoy the physical activity of sex but find it too tedious to deal with the political or emotional implication of sexuality?
I pose here that sexual preference of any kind has less to do with enjoying particular anatomical features than it has to do with how well we've been socialized to be excited by one sex or another. It's personally illuminating and theoretically useful to examine the situations and personality traits that make us feel sexual. I think that it's particularly interesting for we women who have culturally been the "objects" of sexual desire to figure out what it is that turns us on.

4. DO I HAVE A FUTURISTIC UTOPIAN MOTIVATION?

Do I see bisexuality as an aspect of the future liberation of all people? Do I believe that the only way to create a positive future is to live what I believe in, regardless of the oppression I may suffer, both from the straight society and movement groups. In living my vision of a label-free future I am transformed by the process and thus helping to create the future I dream of.

5. AM I DEFYING DICHOTOMIZATION?

Our hierarchical society perpetuates segmentation; mind from body, reason from emotion, whites from non-whites, and politics from sexuality. Women are allowed to relate emotionally to other women, but not sexually. On the other hand, women who become conscious feminists are expected to sever our relationships with men. This constant segmentation acts to keep people apart, and thus powerless.
Am I defying this dichotomization by refusing to deny my sexual and emotional feelings for both men and women? Do I affirm that all people are really more alike than we are different? Do I accept both sexes equally because I want to live my beliefs in an organic integrated life?

Although I do support the bisexual center, I have also had some questions about becoming actively involved.

AN INTERNAL TRUE AND FALSE

I SHOULD NOT SUPPORT THE BISEXUAL CENTER BECAUSE:

_____ As a feminist I don't want to put any energy into men even though I do sleep with some men.
_____ The newsletter was politically vague and seemed therapy oriented and didn't interest me.
_____ I'm unsure about my bisexuality as a life style and don't want to make a commitment.
_____ I find organizing around the narrow issue of sex to be counter-productive because men and women do not have common cultural experiences and may not even have similar goals. Women are bound to get ripped off.

I SHOULD SUPPORT THE BISEXUAL CENTER BECAUSE:

_____ I want to meet more bisexuals (as possible friends and/or lovers).
_____ I want to meet more men and think they would be more interesting if they were bisexual. (why?)
_____ I want to meet more women who I could relate to sexually but are not lesbians. (why don't I want them to be lesbians?)
_____ I want a place to freely discuss with other bisexuals some of the questions I have about being bisexual.
_____ I feel a responsibility as a feminist to discover the political issues of this sexual choice.
_____ I feel some responsibility as a bisexual to help in the creation of a support center for bisexuals.

The above questions were not meant to trigger defensiveness but were offered with the loving assumption that we all desire to discover who we are and be honest about our motivations.

In the next issue I would like to offer some observations from a feminist perspective on: the power implications of same-sex bonding, separatism, and perpetuating sexual vulnerability.

Any feedback would be welcome.

OPINION POLL

There were 80 respondents in a recent survey of the Bi membership to find out where we should put our efforts and how to support activities. This feedback represents about 23% of the membership at the time the poll was taken.

In answer to the first question, "I think the Bi Center should put the greatest effort into," 58% felt that sponsoring social events and get-togethers was "very important." "Providing a network of communication for Bi people", received support from 54% of the members. "Getting funds to set up a new office and meeting place" and "researching bisexuality and informing the public" scored 44% each for "very important."

For the second question, "to support Bi Center activities, we should," 50% responded that it is "very important" to "set up more fund raising events like dances." Second to that was "try to get government, foundation or academic grants" with a 40% response as "very important."

Respondents were for maintaining rather than raising the membership rates or lowering them to attract more members.

The opinion poll provided an opportunity for members to write about their concerns. One such concern was "getting the newsletter out early enough so members in outlying areas can make arrangements to attemd events." The newsletter will now reach those outside of San Francisco by first class mail rather than bulk rate mail and therefore in plenty of time for upcoming activities. This is a new policy adopted by the working committee as a result of feedback from members.

In response to the question of where to put the greatest efforts came the following ideas: a bookstore with a wide range of books on sexuality, supportive services, social functions, consciousness raising experiences, and publishing books.

For the question on fund raising activities, people responded as follows: garage sales, bookstore and coffee house, space for cultural events and dancing, a personals column, and charge for ads in the newsletter.

Space does not permit listing all the written feedback received, but please realize that it has all been noted and appreciated. Thank you to those of you who sent back the questionaire. You will see the results of your input as it is possible while we progress. Some of you offered to work on the ideas you support. Please volunteer your assistance because we need help to make some of your ideas a reality.

NEW OFFICE

The Bi Center has finally located an office! It is at 544 Market Street (near Sansome) room 305-7, San Francisco. On Sunday September 18th volunteers will be needed from 2-5 PM to install the furnishings. The grand opening will be Friday, September 23rd from 6-8 PM. The Center will be open from 3-6 PM Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, for drop-in, phone calls, coffee, discussions, rap groups and committee meetings.

We want donations of furnishings for the office. A flyer is included with this newsletter to describe what particular items are needed. We also need volunteers to come and answer phones at the new office as well as greet drop-ins.

Help is still needed to continue our potlucks, other social functions and the newsletter. So, please come and volunteer.

SFSI TRAINING

For over four years now, the Bay Area has been blessed with its very own community-supported, all volunteer sex information hot-line. During that time, San Francisco Sex Information (SFSI) has answered over 30,000 calls dealing with everything from abortion to virginity, providing non-judgemental sex-positive information. The volunteers commit themselves to work one three-hour shift per week for six months, after successfully completing an intensive forty-hour training program. While not free, the training is a bargain at $75, and many local colleges and universities give credit for it. If you are interested or would like more information, call SFSI between 3 and 9 p.m., Monday through Friday, at 665-7300.
